Viscous water. Mellow, round & soft. Basic & so very plush, soft dollops of warm jungle rain. Filtered by volcanic rock. Promises-your-own-private-island look. It should for the price. Would be good with a hug, as it hugs your moth, plumpishly, or my husband's Tommy Bahama plush robe that my husband hates. Really full bodied like a stuffed dragon, soft at the heart, and maybe in the head. Might be good with white chocolate dipped strawberries or even melon? Cozy. I think this is the comfort water of hispterdom. Taste papery dry, like Kleenex, or a whole roll of tissues, the Charmin of water, lotion-y soft. Ah, but it takes 2,000 times the amount of energy and costs up to 2,000 times the amount than for tap water. Plus, it has ties to a Fijian dictator, and some Arsenic.
